BOUGH AND READY

IN THE COURSE of a chat with a Californian who was passing through Victoria a few days ago, he casually alluded to a place called Rough and Ready, not far from his own home town. Thinking I had misunderstood the name, I questioned it, only to find that it was indeed the official name of an old gold mining town in Nevada County, in the Golden State.

Further, he informed me, Rough and Ready commemorated

a pioneer character, General Zachary (Old Rough and Ready) Taylor. About a century ago, when it was indeed a rough and ready mining camp, its inhabitants got so irritated with both the United States and California that they declared Rough and Ready a "republic" and second from the rest.

SHORT-LIVED REVOLT

MY INFORMANT couldn't tell me exactly how long the secession lasted, but he did know that the "republic" finally collapsed on July 4, 1850, during the camp's patriotic celebration of Independence Day!

That little bit of history reminded me of some of the other odd names one hears, even in Canada. For instance, Prince Edward Island has a Dunk River, not, as I first thought, because its inhabitants were more given to dunking their doughnuts than elsewhere, but after George Montague Dunk, one of its early British settlers who lived there in the 1700's.

JOE LEAGUE

A P.E.I. OLD-TIMER also recalled a little place called Joe League, near where she had lived as a child. It commemorated a pioneer who served with the P.E.I. militia in the early 19th century, Joseph Arsenault.

He was a leading man among the Acadians and was given great exactness in referring to distances, always saying "It is so many leagues, or so many leagues and a half." This practice led to his being nicknamed "Joe League and a Half," and that's how the name came to stick to the settlement.

BRITISH SAMPLES

BUT IT IS IN BRITAIN that some of the quaintest names are to, be found, many so ancient that their origin has been lost in antiquity. Take for example the Somersetshire village of Huish Episcopi where, as long ago as 1645, Cromwell's army and the Royalists fought a bitter battle. I don't know what the "Huish" signifies, but the "Episcopi" suggests that at some time there may have been a church community or abbey there.

Durham County has its Pity Me, Somerset its Brassknocker, Cornwall boasts a Mousehole, and Nobottle is to be found in Norfolk-although I don't know whether it is a particularly

LAND OF NOD

A NYONE WHO KNOWS the English countryside knows of the delightful, sleepy character of its villages. But Norfolk seems to have some that are sleepier than others. For instance, Land of Nod—what could sound more somnolent?

Then there are Great and Little Snoring. Whether the snoring refers to the human variety or that of the pigs for which the country is famous, I don't know. I am looking forward to seeing Christopner, Morley's inverseions for the well-known. seeing Christopher Morley's impressions, for the well-known American writer recently visited the Snorings while in Eng-land, to make sure they really existed. The names had so intrigued him that he was somewhat skeptical of their authen-

EGG JUMP AND NOODLE

THERE IS ALSO a Snoreham-in-Ruins in Essex, which seems to have some association, rather remote, perhaps, with Lynesock and Softly, in Durham. But how Egg Jump, in Worcestershire, or Buttertubs Pass, and Hessle-With-Hilltop, both in Yorkshire, got their names, is buried in mystery.

And who wouldn't chuckle on reading the Hampshire road sign, "To the Wallops," which leads the traveler to Nether Wallop, Over Wallop and Middle Wallop? However, even the passing American needn't make too much fun over those oddities, for they have some equally odd in their own country—as, for instance, Noodle in Texas.

ROBIN HOOD POPOVERS

1 cup sifted Robin Hood Flour 1 cup milk 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 eggs 1½ teaspoons melted shortening

What wonderful puffed-up popovers you make the Robin Hood way — crisp and golden outside, light as thistledown! 1. Preheat oven to 475°F. (Very hot oven.) Place approximately 9 thick mussin pans or custard cups in oven to heat while making batter.

2. Measure sifted flour into sifter, add salt. Sift together into mixing bowl. Add milk gradually, beating until smooth. 3. Beat eggs until thick and light. Add to flour and milk mixture, then add melted short with rotary beater. Batter should be thickness of heavy cream. 4. Remove pans from oven and grease thoroughly (butter gives best flavor.) Pour batter into pans, filling half-full. duce heat to 350°F. (moderate oven) and bake 20 minutes longer.

Serve warm. Yield - approx. 9 popovers.

HOPEFUL WORDS

IN THE NEARLY FIVE YEARS SINCE the United Nations organization came into being there have been many criticisms of its work and achievements. These have ranged from outright condemnation, result ing from disappointment that its highest hopes have not been realized, to favorable verdicts on its efforts to preserve peace and foster the things that contribute to such a state.

In the latter class comes the commer of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, who speaks with added authority by reason of his participation in the affairs of the United long association with the diplomatic side of the atomic control problem. Of the latter question he says: "Atomic energy control is the most important single international political issue." And he says this in the full realization that the United Nations committee set up to resolve this issue—and on which he has sat as Canada's representative for the past four years-has met with nothing but stalemate and frustration in its efforts. That this has resulted from Russia's intransigent and obstruction-ist attitude is, of course, well known to all who have followed the debates through the medium of the press.

But, of the general picture, Gen. Mc Naughton is hopeful. "The more I have seen of the U.N.'s organization and functioning, he said yesterday, "the more I am convinced of the soundness of the basis on which it has been conceived and set up. . . . I think the whole organization, especially in the spe cialized agencies and the economic social fields, is gaining momentum and going in the right direction."

Those are heartening words from one who has first-hand knowledge. As the wartime military leader continues in his two important positions as chairman of Canadian section of the Joint United States Canada Defence Board, and the Dominion's representative in atomic talks, and takes on his new duties as a member of the International Joint Commission on waterways, he will carry the hope of all Canadians that his views of the global peace organization may be borne out by further facts. Too much is at stake for us to permit him to be proved other than right.

HE WAS THERE

IT HAS BECOME A COMMON ATTITUDE in many quarters to look upon Britindustrial production methods with rather a superior air-to discuss them, with out direct knowledge, in terms of outmod. I equipment, inefficient techniques and timeconsuming hand labor, It is interesting. therefore to read the impressions of a mar who has recently visited the United Kingdom and had a comprehensive look at what is going on in the factories and machine shops of that country.

Mr. Andrew D. MacLean, publisher of Canada Lumberman, recently paid such a visit, covering about 1,500 miles in England and Scotland and walking "about five miles a day through factories of every description" His conclusion, expressed in a recent edition of his magazine, is that "Britain is not dying but growing." He found little "feather-bedding" in industry. Instead of complacency in management he found "new ideas, research and eagerness to try out new methods." He found labor "glad to help management with experience from the shop." He found pride in the use of power tools to achieve the results of traditional ndwork. And he noted everywhere among craftsmen "an eagerness for new, faster, better methods." That does not sound like the worn-out, tired, depressed and dejected nation which had been described by some writers on this continent. Mr. MacLean does not bring us a picture of a people on the verge of peace time defeat. In fact, his resume has much common with the stories we read of the British nation in the throes of its heroic efforts during the war. The editor's optimism have been exaggerated; we are not in a position to judge. KEEPING MINDS HEALTHY

AMONG THE HIGHLIGHTS OF THE Royal Canadian Mounted Police report for last year carried by The Canadian Press, it is significant that one paragraph should be devoted to the leisure time spen by members of the force in the promotion of organized recreation for youth. Keeping boys busy and happily engaged in con structive activities unquestionably deserves recognition as a form of preventive medicine against crime.

The plan is not novel. It is being followed by provincial and municipal forces throughout the continent. And, where it Nations, and particularly because of his has been tried, healthy young minds have at the very moment when it was just begin remained healthy from the application of this form of social therapy.

HATS OFF TO LEONARD

GOLFERS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA IN particular and throughout Canada in general have undoubtedly read with a good deal of interest and pleasure of Vancouver's Stan Leonard's fine showing in the Long Beach invitation golf tournament this week.

At the Lakewood Country Club on Monday the Marine Drive's professional wound up the 72-hole grind with a total of 273 strokes—a commendable performance any top-flight golfing company. And while Stan collected $1400, a sum not to be sneezed at, the fact that the great Sam Sneed could card no better than 277-after winning the playoff against the revived Ben Hogan a week or so ago to cop the Pebble Beach plum-adds to the "plumage" which Leonard now is entitled to wear as tribute to his brilliant golf.

From time to time, of course, golfers in this country, even those with low handicaps, have wondered why competitors from the Dominion in international tournaments have not been able to make a better showing. This is not difficult to explain. Canada's professional golfers have to earn their living by teaching, by repair work, and making clubs-a profession in itself. Many golf memberships in the United States, with a yen for prestige, put up a great deal of money to send their "pet" professionals to take part in international competitions. Canada is not able to do much of this.

Apart from the fact that this Dominion jealously guards the amateur status of its participants in universal sports, there is in this part of the North tinent a disinclination to break down the barrier between the amateur and the professional. Our good friends on the southern side of the 49th parallel are entitled to has achieved an atomic bomb and has simu their own views in this regard. Some amateurs, however, are really professionals. Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP From Washington

ACHESON'S FIRST YEAR

IT IS A YEAR since Dean Gooderham Acheson was sworn in as Secretary of State of the United States. He has already celebrated the anniversary, a little in ad vance, by routing his enemies on the For nosa issue. It is still in order, however to try to assess Acheson's performance in what is now perhaps the most important single office in the free world.

The most obvious thing about Acheson is that he is outstanding. He was an outstanding public servant in other times when the competition was more severe than it is today. On the current Washington scene, as the stature of the surrounding progressively diminishes, Acheson looms larger and ever larger.

BUT ALTHOUGH Dean Acheson has the intellectual power, the strong character and the personal and moral style of a big man, it is also true that his job migh overwhelm a giant. No great foreign min ister of the past, no William Pitt or John Quincy Adams, ever had to deal with human societies grown so insanely complex as to be almost uncontrollable. And even Acheson's immediate predecessors, confronted though they were with a world in ruins, labored in happier circumstances than he.

It is now very clear, in the first place, that President Truman made up his mind to a general slowdown in defence and foreign policy, about the time of his electoral vic tory in 1948. In part the motive was budgetary. In part, however, the President's campaign-borne dislike of Secretary of Defence James V. Forrestal and Under Secre tary of State Robert A. Lovett had also caused him to distrust their methods and

FOR THESE REASONS, the effort initiated by Forrestal and Lovett, by James F. Byrnes and George C. Marshall and Ache son himself, began to be materially relaxed ning to succeed. The foreign and defence slowdown confronted Acheson when he en-tered on his office.

In addition, the former close partnership between the State and Defence Departments was soon replaced, on the top level at least, by the guerrilla warfare typified by Louis Johnson's Formosa intervention. The old, close collaboration of bi-partisanship in foreign policy soon broke down, so that Acheson faced a hostile Congress. Even with the State Department, he began to lose the help of certain of the most experienced men who advised his predecessors.

ALL THIS MEANT, in turn, that Acheson had to tackle an incredibly uphill job, in a state of almost incredible loneliness and isolation. The American effort might slow down, but the tempo of world events would not slow down. Day after day, month after month, great decisions have crowded in upon Acheson, insistently, clamorously, confusingly. Yet he was and is called upon to make these decisions in solitude, alone to convince the President of the need for painful and even dangerous action. And alone to point the way for the country. No man on earth could do all this without long hesitation.

NO WONDER, then, that Acheson's first year has been a year in which the world zon has ominously darkened. There are items on the plus side, of course. Euro pean recovery has progressed. The Atlantic pact has been passed. In the German negotiations in Paris, Acheson showed himself a brilliant diplomat. At home in the United States he has just won a victory on Asiatic taneously begun to surmount almost every other major difficulty of the immense Russian re-armament program. In contrast, the United States has offered the world the e: aordinary spectacle of rapid though unadmitted disarmament, thus far more than negating the Atlantic pact.

THE BRITISH have suffered a shattering economic crisis, and although their situation is looking up for the present, no firm steps have been taken to prevent another British crisis in 12 to 18 months. Finally, the hydrogen bomb has hideously emerged as a new factor in world politics and strategy.

Such is a partial list of Dean Acheson's unfinished business. The least of these problems can lead to the severest setback in the world contest with Soviet imperialism. Most of them, if left unsolved, are quite capable of producing total catastrophe. Yet Acheson must try to solve all of them, all at one, on his own, and despite the complacent general commitment to bust ness-as-usual.

IN TRUTH, Dean Acheson is like the only sober man on a raft of drunken lumber jacks, whose bellowing of "Mademoiselle from Armentiers" obscures the approaching thunder of Niagara Falls. The raft, which also carries all Americans' futures, can yet be saved. But hardly any man in history has been so burdened with such agonizing and desperate responsibility. We have a right to assume that the general wasn't making an ordinary hands-across-the-sea address. He undoubtedly was speaking with the authorization of his government, and perhaps under instructions.

There is much bitterness in Britain against the Germans because of the world wars, yet through the generations the British people have felt closer to the Reich than to some other countries we need not name In any event, the future of

Daily Oil Production Still On Increase

U.S. markets for Canadian crude may be difficult to obtain in light of pro-ration news now coming out of the state of Texas. In view of the news coming out of the south many Calgary oil men are of the opinion that it is time more thought was being given to developing larger Canadian markets for Alberta oil.

Canada, consuming 300,000 bars and the province's 1,045 operating wells put forth an average of 61,798 barrels of oil and natural gasoline daily, compared with 55,164 barrels per day in the previous week. MONTREAL-After making a brief climb in the early hours, stocks showed a slight downward rend near the final hour on the Montreal Stock Exchange and Curb Market. Base metals and beverages were weaker, followed by the industrial section, while papers, utilities and senior oils showed no definite trend and were mixed.

NEW YORK - The stock market did no better than hold steady today. A pre-noon buylift for a while but there was no follow-through to the demand and many gains faded away.

Trunover reached a rate of only about 1,200,000 shares.

LONDON - Profit-taking in British funds brought reaction to the gilt-edged section of the London Stock Exchange. The recent uptrend was reversed by Supy small selling and the cessation of buying. Genuine sales added to bear operations produced losses up to % per cent. The check administered in funds created caution and hesitancy in other domestic issues.

In Snow Avalanche of 1916

Snow scene at Government and Broughton Street's taken February, 1916, when snow piled up from three to six feet deep all over city. Hundreds of troops at the Willows and Work Point barracks were called out to shovel s now from streetcar tracks.

No Piles As High As This-Yet

ation the persistence of Old Man Winter is giving Victoria and district a continuous "white look" is nothing short of amazing . it has not yet come near to matching what happened back in "16.

The old-time residents today after listening to the chatter of kiddies and college boys and girls about the present snowfall let their minds wander back to February of 1916 when the clouds opened up with a silver avai-anche that left residents wallowing in snow up to their armpits in the matter of a few days.

WITHOUT A THAW In the winter of 1916 more ow fell within a limited period of 13 days without a thaw, than has ever been experienced since. On Feb. 1 and 2, a total of 31 inches of snow fell. With the exception of three days, snow continued to pile up until 13 to a height of 6½ feet. until Feb. The present fall may bring the total higher but in 1916 there on this occasion and snow piled snow day after day. The February storm paralyzed all lines of communications, snowed-up thousands of Vic torians, threatened isolated fam-ilies in the district with starvation and brought all World War military training in the area to a standstill. CONDITIONS SIMILAR

But watch out, folks . . . it may happen again. During the month of January of 1916 the weather conditions were similar to what is now being experienced in Victoria. Old Man Winter then meted out his snowflakes dribbles and allowed for days of thaw and rain. Then he unleashed a blast that dis-rupted the life of the community vividly remembered today.

The first 1916 snowfall ocured on Jan. 8. Only four fenths of an inch fell. As the days passed by Victorians ex comparatively light snowfalls and brief periods of warm weather. All were expecting a change of weather at any moment. None suspected what was in store for D.C., X-ray. 612 View Street.

Towards the end of the month, grey clouds began to loom over the city. As a warning of what was yet to come, 7.6 inches of snow fell on Jan. 29. The snowfall slowed down transportation Hosiery mending is now being Rom. but was not considered serious by d the inhabitants.

For the whole of the month 30.2 inches of snow had fallen. The avalanche of snow began Tuesday, Feb. 1. Within the on Tuesday, Feb. 1. space of 48 hours 31 inches of snow fell, raising the fevel of the old January snowfall to a cord height. DRIFTS 14 FEET

When Victorians awoke on the morning of Feb. 2 they saw snow on the ground up to their waists and drifts as high as 12 and 14

All city roads were blocked. The B.C. Electric Railway had to abandon running their cars. There were no mail deliveries and the dairy supply was stalled as trains were unable to break through to the city.

In downtown Victoria many merchants were unable to open merchants were unable to open the doors of their stores because of snow drifts packed high against the buildings. Work stopped in all public offices Schools were closed, as well as the courts of law. DUG SNOW TRENCHES

The residential districts of the city resembled a battlefront. The snow had, in the main, drifted in great heaps up to the side walks, and to gain access to the centre of the road residents constructed narrow trenches in the snow. Some of these were quite elaborate and connected up with

Humber Happy Over Morale Of Canadians

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)-The morale of Canada's British Empire Games team is high and the Dominion's athletes have about reached their peak; Bruce Humber, track and field coach, said today.

"It is most unfortunate the second half of our team was delayed in transit, but if we have as much luck in getting them in trim in as short time as with the first party, Canada will be well served," the 34year-old mentor from Victoria

The plane carrying the second half of the Canadian team landed today. The party was delayed five days in San Francisco by bad weather.

Gerard Cote, beaming marathon runner from St. Hyacinthe,
Que., appeared as fresh as a daisy, and his only worry seemed to be that the delay had caused him to run short of his beloved cigars.

However, he had conveniently borrowed some from Svein Sig-fusson, Winnipeg discus thrower and another cigar-smoking mem-ber of the team.

B.C. STARS LOOK GOOD

Humber, who represented Canada in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin and reached the semifinals in the sprints, picked Bill Parnell and Jack Hutchins, both of Vancouver, as the chief threats for the Empire half-mile title. He named Eleanor McKenzie of Vancouver as the standout prospect for the women's 100-vard dash.

Humber said that Miss McKen zie had cultivated a fast start and was running with extreme ease and relaxation. On her present form Eleanor is certain to be a match for Marjorie Jackson of Australia, co-holder of the world 100-yard title.

The Dominion's athletes are regarded as the best dressed and pest behaved of the 10 teamstotaling more than 400 athletes track athlete of the era since 1900.
